AN OLD-TIME RADIO show is taking shape at the Clearview Cinema in Red Bank. The host of "WoodSongs Old-Time Radio Hour," Michael Johnathon, is working with six Clearview Cinemas in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania to bring his Prairie Home Companion-like stage shows, featuring live musicians and other artists, before a live theater audience, at 7 p.m. Wednesdays through February.

The format calls for a live performer in each Clearview theater.

Singer/guitarist Pat Guadagno performed that function, in Red Bank, Oct. 22.

Guadagno (Monmouth County Sheriff Kim

Guadagno's brother-in-law) offered up a variety of songs that ran from funny or cynical to romantic or poignant with the unwavering skill of the professional that he is, despite an audience that could be counted on one hand. The theater was lucky to get someone with the talents of Guadagno, who appears Monday nights at the Downtown in Red Bank, and Tuesday nights at the Celtic Cottage in Long Branch.

Following the live show, the audience is transported to Johnathon's WoodSongs on the big screen, which featured that night Jakob Dylan and the Gold Mountain Rebels, and the macabre, super-talented poet Minton Sparks. Admission is $12.
